A Message from the President

Since its founding in 1974, Asia Electronics Industry has chalked up many fine achievements in development and production of power supplies, starting with switching power supplies. We now have more than 300 satisfied companies as our customers as we branch out into new fields. Asia Electronics Industry is particularly aware of its social responsibility as an enterprise responsible for the power sections of electronic equipment for public facilities and industrial use production equipment. That has led us to put every effort into developing leading-edge technology and completing our operations in the areas of design, production, quality control and reliability control. Our employees dedicate themselves to continuing and superior efforts in answering the new and changing needs of our customers. We're grateful for your support and suggestions.
